Instructor: LaTonya Warren's journey began from humble beginnings. Raised by two wonderful parents who at the time were very young, she was often with her grandmother, a holistic cultivator and retail expert of the cannabis plant, LaTonya gained firsthand knowledge of the plant at a very young age. After serving eight years in the Army, she dedicated her life's work to advancing cannabinoid understanding and sustainability in the cannabis industry. LaTonya believes that through education, we can dispel negative perceptions and foster a deeper appreciation for the benefits of cannabis. She holds a BS in Biology from Illinois State University, and a MS in Science and Technology from American Military University. LaTonya has maintained her license as a Certified Pharmacy Technician, which marked her entry into the healthcare field during her service in the Army. It was during this time that she discovered her true passion for educating and serving those in need.
